THE NEW CAPITOL HILL WINE & SPIRITS

GO GREEN

As consumers become more environmentally conscious, their concerns extend even to the world of wine. As a result, the number of organic wines has increased in the past few years; available from nearly every wine growing region in the world, and covering a broad range of price points. While not every winery is producing organic wines, most are, at least, practicing sustainable agriculture, or eschewing the use of chemical pesticides. Along with organics, some wineries are also seeking biodynamic certification, known as "Demeter." Biodynamism is a practice that includes treating the soil with homeopathic solutions, and in accordance with lunar cycles. Does all this add to the quality or flavor of the wine? Some think so, and it certainly can't hurt. Come in and try some of our organic/biodynamic wines, and see for yourself.

Dear Neighbor,

My name is St. Mark's—I'm an Episcopal church right here on Capitol Hill. We hope you will visit us if you are looking for a new church home. This month we will be starting our summer's Shelter Project—an important part of how we reach out to others in need. Wherever you are on your faith journey, you are welcome to join us!

Peace,

St. Mark's
