"Tom was more than a real estate agent; he was our partner throughout the entire home buying process. From the start, he was interested in understanding what our requirements and desires were— what we needed both functionally and emotionally in a home— and always remained true to these. Indeed, unlike many agents, he always had our best interests in mind and never hesitated to say when a home was not for us. His advice was always spot-on, making him the trusted partner one needs when looking to buy a home. All of Tom's teammates conduct their business with the same integrity: the client is always their top priority. It is a true team operation. All are knowledgeable, trustworthy and genuinely care about their clients." Dana & Mahmoud Baki-Fadlallah

A Literary Feast

October 24, 2009. Reply online at aliteraryfeast.org

A fundraiser presented by the Capitol Hill Community Foundation to support Sports On the Hill, the all-volunteer, youth sports organization currently serving over 1,000 children in the Capitol Hill neighborhood. Sports on the Hill activities include soccer, baseball, softball, football, basketball, wrestling, track & field, lacrosse and paddling. 30 dinner parties held in homes across Capitol Hill all on one evening. Each dinner features food and fun related to a specific book (reading is optional –it's a dinner, not a discussion!)

CAUCUS MEMBERS MODEL TO BENEFIT COLLEGE-BOUND YOUTH

The Congressional Black Caucus Spouses and Macy's hosted "A Night of Fashion, Inspiration and Celebration: A Tribute to Progress," on September 25, as part of the 39th Congressional Black Caucus Foundation's (CBCF) annual legislative conference. The event, that was held at Macy's Metro Center location, benefitted the Congressional Black Caucus Spouses Scholarship Program, which has given away more than $9 million in scholarships. The evening featured a spectacular Runway to Reality fashion show, with clothing from Macy's modeled by members of the CBCF, and commented by the legendary Audrey Smaltz. # The 1918 Flu Pandemic

By Dr. David Walls-Kaufman

Dr. DeMain's body felt the seductive slow rocking of the vehicle underneath him as it rolled over the 4 a.m. moonlit road. The back of his seat spread his muscles, inviting him to relax. His head lolled.

He couldn't fight it. He had to sleep.

He dropped off and let go of the controls.

He had been up for twenty-four hours. He had seen scores of patients at the office and then ridden out to the farms of many more that were too sick to come to town. The faces of their family members said it all. The patients in bed had the deadly flu. They spat the white sputum and blood. Their faces blue from lack of oxygen.

He gave them chiropractic adjustments, as he had learned in chiropractic school back in Davenport, Iowa. The chiropractor removed nerve interference so that the body's innate healing intelligence had clear sight the way it was designed to.

Dr. DeMain could only hope he had been called in early enough to help. This flu season he had adjusted fifteen people with the flu every day so to give them every chance to survive. He hadn't lost one yet, even though their MDs had given them up for dead.

They said in Cleveland the dead bodies were stacked in the public parks like cord wood, six feet high.

He dreamed of faces . . .

Suddenly, he felt himself bump to a stop. The white sun of daybreak streamed over the cocked ears of his carriage horse, Adam, and across the dew of his front yard.

Once again, he had fallen asleep in his buggy, and Adam had found their way home after the doctor fell asleep from exhaustion.

His wife Cheryl came to the door . . .
